THE NEW CABLE LINE.

President Hurt Says Work Will Shortly At a word from the Commissioners of the District 500 men will go to work and ground will be broken in laying the cable street-car line on Pennsylvania avenue and Fourteenth street.

President Hurt of the Washington and Georgetown Company is ready to begin, but he can do nothing without the consent

President Hurt of the Washington and Georgetown Company is ready to begin, but he can do nothing without the consent of the Commissioners, under whose supervision the work has to be dohe. The company has already on band an immense stock of material, which they have been buying for weeks past, and they are anxious, now that spring is here, to commence operations on a large scale.

But the Commissioners say nothing about it. They are supposed to be framing a set of rules by which the company will have to be governed in the work, but, in the opinion of the company, they are a long time about it. In the meantime, however, the managers are hard at work on the power-house at Fourteenth and the Avenue. They have commenced on the foundations and the walls of the magnificent structure will soon be going up.

President Hurt says that work will tirst be started on the unimproved portion of the Fourteenth-street road. The line will be extended from the greasent terminus to Mount Pleasant, and as this part of the thoroughfare was included in the street estimates of the present year, it was thought best to put in the cable there before the street was paved so that it would not have to be again torn up.

"We want to get to work at once," said President Hurt to a Carrie reporter this morning, "and are only waiting for a word to go at it. When we do commence we intend to rush things, and it is our intention to get through the major portion of the work on the road before cold weather gets here again and interferes. We think we can do it."

"Have you sold the property on which the stables are?" questioned the reporter, "We have not," said Mr. Hurt, "and more than that, have not received an offer for it. I don't know how these rumors get about town. We would sell if a good offer was made, however, as the property is now entirely too valuable to use as a storehouse for cars, and another site would do quite as well. I know nothing about the report you mention that an electric light company has made a bid for the property owned by th ine and another here in Georgetown. So you see we will not need those stables. "I could not tell you," he continued, "when and exactly where work will be commenced for the very good reason that I do not know, but you may be sure that it will be at a very early day. When it is completed there will be in the city of Washington just twenty-two miles of cable road and the service here will not be surpassed by that of any other city in the country. be surpassed by that the country. # BALTIMORE EX-CONFEDERATES.

Dissatisfaction in Their Ranks Because of the Johnston Funeral. of the Johnston Funeral.

At a meeting of the Maryland Confederate Society in Baltimore last evening the following resolution was adopted:

"That a committee of five be appointed by the president to prepare and present to a future meeting of this society suitable resolutions to express the feelings of affection and respect which this society feels for the memory of General Joseph E. Johnston, and that the said committee have power, if in their judgment they consider it proper, to arrange for a public demonstration which will testify the feelings of this whole community to him."

General Bradley T. Johnson appointed the following as the committee: Colonel Charles Marshall, Joseph Packard, jr., c. Ridgely Goodwin, Skipwith Wilmer, Major W. Stuart Symington.

These resolutions gave several of the members an opportunity of expressing the feeling in the society at not being allowed to participate in the funeral of General Johnston.

Sergeant J. William Thomas warmly criticised the action of those who had declined the offer of the society, and thought the ex-Confederates should have gone anyhow.

Mr. Joseph Packard, jr., said: "I have declined the offer of the society, and thought the ex-Confederates should have gone anyhow.

Mr. Joseph Packard, jr., said: "I have never known a greater feeling of outraged sensibility than there is existing among us about this very matter. The executors of General Johnston had the legal right to do as they did. We are in no way responsible for It."

Mr. James R. Wheeler said: "I was in favor of calling the society out and attending the funeral without getting permission. After appointing the committee to consult the Messrs. McLane it was impossible to do other than as they wished." Gen. Bradley T. Johnson thought it was undignified for the society to still further discuss the matter, as the executors of General Johnson had the legal right to do as they did. "If we had gone along on our own business, and attended the funeral without consulting anybody, then it would have been all right."

Johnny's Playmates Bring Flowers for His Mother's Bier.

A number of little boys, whose ages ranged from 5 to 8 years, stood in front of a house on South Carolina avenue, between Ninth and Tenth streets southiers. There was crape on the door the house. The faces of the little fel-mas showed that they were grief-stricken. The Carrie reporter asked the boys who was dead. They replied in chorus: "It is Mrs. — and her boy Johnny is our playmate."

One diminutive youngster then said: "Less dit up a 'scription and buy Johnny's mother some flowers."

"All right," was the answer, and the next moment the boys started off to their respective homes to get their little savings to purchase the flowers.

Before sundown that little group of humanity met again and chipped in their primies and went to a florist and purchased an appropriate piece for which they paid two dollars. A card accompanied the flowers and bore this inscription: "From Johnny's playmates."

UDGE KIMEALL WATCHES JUDGE MILLER'S PROCEEDINGS TO-DAY.

Getting Points on How to Run the Ad ditional Police Court-What a Visit to an Officer's House Cost-Dots and Dashes Gleaned from the Record.

The new Police Judge, Ivory G. Kimball, sat on the Bench beside Judge Miller this morning in the Police Court and took his first lesson in dispensing justice. He watched the cases tried very attentively and now and then would ask his associate a question about the law. Judge Kimball is a big, portly man, with a flowing beard and he has a habit of leaning over his desk when listening to the testimony. The two judges will go to work at onand formulate a set of rules for the use of he jury court, the first session of which sill be held one week from to-day.

What a Visit to the Officer Cost. Mr. David Crouch, who was fined yes-erday by Judge Miller for keeping an terday by Judge Miller for keeping an unlicensed bar, was in court again this morning. Officer Cotton charged him with disorderly conduct, and said that the defendant had come to his house last night, knocked at his door, and when he was roused and came out Crouch struck at him. Cotton was the officer in the liquor case of yesterday. Mr. Crouch said that when his wife left the court after the trial Cotton had told her that if she didn't go home be would "rum her in." He resented this, but said that he did not go to the house to have a difficulty with the officer, but to collect a beer bill of eighty-five cents. Cotton denied that he owed the bill, and said that he was treated to all the beer he ever drank in Crouch's place. Judge Miller imposed a fine of $5.

His Half Shaven Face Got Him Of. Jeff Siewart stepped into the dock, puris nat down on the floor and admitted to Judge Miller that he had carried a ra-to Judge Miller that he had carried a razor. One side of his face was shaven and the other was black with beard.

"Your Honor," he said, "I carried a razor to shave with; my brother lent it to me; but when I found that it was so dull I put it in my pocket and went out to have it sharpened."

But as ill luck would have it, he met a friend and they took a drink together, and then another, until he got his brain a little muddled and became disorderly. He was arrested, and the razor found in his pocket. His half-shaven face made the Judge put credence in his story and the charge of concealed weapons was dismissed. For the disorderly charge he was fined $5.

She wore a silly smile on her goodnatured face and a widow's cap on her head. Her name was Mary Hill and Officer Pierson found her sleeping in a stable on the commons near the Boundary. She had no home.

"Let her spend a time in the workhouse," said Judge Miller, "Some cold blooded person has turned her out now that she is too old to work. Help her out."

And the old woman tottered back to the corridor. Provided With a Home.

He Was Too Dangerous to Be at Large The light of reason had died out of the eyes of Wesley Lee, and when the Judge asked him whether he plead guilty to the charge of vagrancy he smiled and said:

"Huh?" and looked admiringly at a girl in the crowd.

"We've had the boy at the station since Thursday," said Officer Pierson, "and we don't know what to do with him. He lounges about the streets and frightens women, and several times he has pursued them. He makes a practice of it, and we believe he is a dangerous man."

Dr. Frank, the sanitary officer, said that he had had the boy examined by Drs. McKim, Leach, and Strickland. Drs. McKim and Leach both agreed that the man was dangerous and should not be allowed to go at large, but they would not agree to give a certificate.

"Well, I'm not going to let him go. He may do damage at any time, and I don't propose to give him a chance. No one knows when he may become violent and perhaps commit murder. There's but one place I can send him, and he must go to the workhouse," said the Judge.

THE JUDGE'S GUEST. The Room in Sight-Plausibilities, Prospects and Possibilities.

Alexandria is booming. It is a boom pure and simple, substantial and honest pure and simple, substantial and honest in its every nature. Why? Alexandria has long been injured by the close proximity of Washington. Her business interests have been paralyzed through Washington's fast growth and by Alexandrians going there for employment and to make purchases.

The people are not lazy; she can't be fast when she's so poor and so many of her people do their work and spend even ten hours of the day away from her. She is not asleep exactly. Take 1,500 people out of a town of 14,000—her best, almost—and you can't help but see its effect in business matters.

ont of a town of 14,000—her best, almost—and you can't help but see its effect in business matters.

Now that manufacturing sites and wharf property in Washington is reaching a figure beyond reasonable and just dimensions, when the city is boiling over and the waste places are nearly all filled up, where railroad facilities are getting cramped, and life too much of a 'boarding-house' nature for some people, etc., etc., the people look over this way—all kinds of people.

The postoffice here can be reached from the Washington City Postoffice in the same time the postoffice in Georgetown can be reached. Living here is cheaper and more satisfactory, and when the new railroad and new boats are on this summer, Alexandria will be as near the Departments as Georgetown almost. There are some daily Washington goers who work in the Navy Yard and in Georgetown. Many, in fact over 1,200 people go to Washington from here every day, and William M. Reardon of F. A. Reed & Co., A. G. Uhler, Colonel D. A. Windsor, Washington Brown, Frank Hume, R. S. Lacy, Colonel L. W. Reid, Charles Bendheim and others are well known in Washington business circles.

There are more in subordinate positions

There are more in subordinate positions of the Government and business houses of course. The Washington merchants, such as Messrs. Lisner, Lansburgh, Williams, Moses, Stutster, Saks, Baum, Robinson, Parker & Co., Eiseman Bros., Woodward & Lothrop, Franc, and scores of others employing Alexandrians to draw Alexandria custom. Mr. Mit. Buchanan started this for Hable Bros. Carter's cash store has been long a resort for Alexandrians. Some of these advertise in the Gazette from away back. They send their delivery wagon over several times a week now and others ship express paid articles bought by Alexandrians. Thus Alexandria is and has for some time been but a suburb of Washington and even if she grows to Long Bridge and Arlington she will doubtless be the same conservative old Democratic and Virginia town. There are more in subordinate position:

It is a mistake to laugh at Alexandria as Washington does. N. W. Burchell, Wm. Morrison, Robert Beall, A. Hancock, S. J. Reed, H. O. Claughton, Dr. Bullock, Judge Westel Willoughby, the late Judge Willer, and scores and scores of others are ...ere ex-Alexandrians, and they ever take or took interest in their old town and its neoule.

ere ex-Alexandrians, and they ever take or took interest in their old town and its people.

Alexandria has borne the brunt of all that has been mean.

She was cursed because of the failure of the coal shipping indostry and the grain shipping, and the Pocahontas boom, the old Alexandria canal, the W. C. V. M. and G. S. S. R. R., the "Iron boom," savings bank bust, etc., etc. John P. Agnew successfully made charcoal blooms and when a Northern syndicate bought him out and ceclared they'd make Alexandria a Pittsburg, they bought up the Pioneer Mills property, ship yard and started the bloomery as an experimental blast furnace, and then discharged the men and only improved some of the wharf property. The have'nt paid their due tax bills yet.

The New York Herald killed the Pocahontas, which Baltimore has taken to her bosom and will profit by. Untold amounts were spent out of Alexandria's treasury for the Loudoun road and Midland and old Alexandria canal without a cent coming back. Though her two banks that went under paid back dollar for dollar, one with all the interest due, she was cursed. Her people were not alone to blame for her street railway going under. Her coal trade went through no fault of her own. She built good ships and started right, She built the Portner with her own money and then gave her to a Yankee skipper to run. He ran her upon a foreign shore and telegraphed back she'd gone down to see Dan McGinty and the devil, though the crew which he shupped back on another vessel declared she was hardly scratched on the bottom, and it's still believed the Portner with her name changed is still a good craft.

Alexandria is growing fast. Society here is good for all—but, like wild-cat concerns and the negro, B. Shep. White, is she don't get down on her knees and beg. She is not a city of boarding-houses; she feels herself equal to any; she responds when called upon, in war, in concerns and the negro, B. Shep. White, she don't get down on her knees and beg. She is not a city of boarding-houses; she feels herself equal to any; she responds when called upon, in war, in peace, in business, in everything.

She can't do everything; she don't claim anything impossible. Alexandria is an ideal place in some respects—none but her people can appreciate this, though. She does more and has more than she gets credit for.

Washington should be more consistent, more liberal, and such papers like the Washington Siar make fools of themselves by asserting they started the new boom. The people started it—therefore its foundation is firm. This paper would have Alexandrians go a mile from the train to Pennsylvania Avenue, apparently for the sake of pure and simple cussedness.

Alexandria is all right she is now coing.

Alexandria is all right, she is now going ahead. The C. & O.'s new arrangement—soon the N. & W. and S. V. cars coming over via Front Royal, and the new street and electric roads, and opening up of the Morefield coal regions, and the rebuilding of the old C. & O. Canal, must be helpful. Indeed see a Roanoke machine works in that low country, on Cannon Run, in the vicinity of the old distillery, and coal dumped into the holds of vessels from the canal to Jones' Point. The death rate here is smaller than any town of its population in the east. The water is pure, and improvements in the streets and so on are being rapidly made, the old boulders of General Washington's day are being broken up and mud holes tilled. There are twenty odd trams up and down daily between here and Washington, and the ferry runs hourly during the day. Both the ferry and local road pay good dividends. the ferry and local road pay good dividends. R. B.

President Livingston Minnus at 12 o'clock called the convention to order. He delivered an address reviewing the work of this association during the past year and making a number of suggestions and recommendations.

In the course of his remarks the president took occasion to culogize in an eloquent manner his old law partner and late member of the association, General Joseph E. Johnston.

When he had concluded, Captain Tyler, president of the Washington Board of Underwitors, extended an invitation to the 150 delegates present to accompany the local board or a trip to Mt. Vermon and Marshall Hall to morrow evening.

Hon. Simon Wolf made a few appropriate remarks, after which the report of the scerefary and treasurer were road.

The officers of the association are Livingston Minnus, president, L. M. Tucker, vice-president; Charles Floming, secretary and treasurer.

The executive committee consisted of John O. Young, chairman, James U. Hanter, John W. Pearse, A. G. Mellwaine, jr., and R. A. Hancock.

THE NEW POLICE COURT JUDGE.

A Sketch of Mr. Ivory G. Kimball, Who Was Appointed Vesterday. Mr. Ivory G. Kimball, who was yester-Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, whose most en ertaining efforts of a few months ago are yet ripe in our memories, will make their reapparance at the New National Theatre next week. It is a pleasure to welcome the return of such accomplished and artistic members of the dramatic profession as Mr. and Mrs. Kendal. On the occasion of their former visit the theatre proved inadequate to hold the crowd and many were turned away unable to gain admission. Those London favorites have made a professional tour of the country and have everywhere been most kindly received by large, elite and appreciative audiences. They have steadily grown in popularity and their artistic performances have developed charms not common to our stage now. Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and their adequate company are to appear during this engagement in a more varied and excellent group of new plays.

The repertoire for the week is an excellent selection. The opening play will be "The Ironmaster," in which both Mr. and Mrs. Kendal appeared to excellent advantage during their first visit to Washington. This will be given on Monday and Friday evenings. The repertoire for the balance of the week will be "Impulse," "A Scrap of Paper," "The Queen's Shilling" and for the first time in Washington Herman Merivale and Palgrave Simpson's romantic drama. "All for Her."

The advance demand for seats at the New National Theatre indicates that Mr. and Mrs. Kendal will play as notable an engagement as that of last year. All addenirers of polished comedy will be glad to welcome them. The plays selected for their brief engagement will be those that show these artists to the best advantage.

MeCaull Opera Company at Albaugh's. yet ripe in our memories, will make their reapparance at the New National Theatre

Mr. Ivory G. Kimball, who was yesterday appointed by the President to be the additional Police Court Judge, is well and most favorably known in this city. He is a lawyer of experience and ability, but has not practiced much in the local courts. He is a native of Maine, having been born in Jay, in that State, in 1845. When a bey his father moved to Fort Wayne, Ind., where Judge Kmball grew up and received his education. He served one year in the war with the Fifty-first Indiana Volunteers. In 1865 he was appointed to a position in the Internal Revenue Bureau by Secretary McCalloch, and has been a resident of this city ever since. He was graduated from the law department of the Columbian University and admitted to the Bar in 1868.

Many years ago he became a member of the shoe firm of Edmonston. Co. He became the owner of that business upon the death of Mr. Edmonston, and is still its owner. He is a trustee of the Assembly Presbyterian Church. He was poponiment was something of a surprise to him. He has always been a Republican. The members of the Bar speak in high terms of him. In fact his appointment is most favorably received in all quarters.

Working Republicans Don't Like It.

The Republicans of this town who train under the oriflamme of Andrew Gleason and Colonel Perry Carson are decidedly forn up over the appointment of Mr. Ivory G. Kimball to the new police judge-ship. They say that it is a slap at their organization. One disgusted Republican said to Thu Carrie reporter this afternoon:

"Of all the men appointed to important places under the District Government since Mr. Harris was sworn in not one can be said to represent the active working Republican organization of this city. We asked for the appointment of Mr. Cahill because he is one of us. General Harrison need not expect the two District delegates to the next national convention to support him for renomination. We will send anti-Harrison delegates at whatever cost." McCaull Opera Company at Albaugh's. The engagement of the McCaull Opera Company at Albaugh's Grand Opera House next week promises to be one of House next week promises to be one of the most notable events of the local musical season. It is in the nature of a light opera festival. The name of McCaull is identified with high class production of comic opera, the organization ranking among the very best in the country. The reputation of the manager assures a handsome production, but the present company is put forward as the finest that has ever flown the McCaull banner. The company carries its own scenery, and the costumes are new and very beautiful. The organization includes a number of well-known and popular comic opera artists, among whom are Helen Bertram, Digby Bell, Laura Joyce-Bell, Josephine Knapp, Annie Myers, Chauncey Olcott, W. F. Rochester, Fred Frear, William Blaisdell, Charles W. Dungan, Cora Henderson and others.

The repertoire will be: "Clover," Mon-National Amateur Regatta at This City. At a meeting of the joint committee representing the Potomac, Columbia and Analostan clubs of this city, held last evening, the letter from the regatta committee of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, from the regatta committee of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, accepting the invitation of the boat clubs of this city to hold the national regatta on the Potomac this year, was received.

Based upon this letter of acceptance the joint committee decided upon Tuesday and Wednesday, August 17 and 18 next, as the dates of holding the regatta. The joint committee proceeded to a permanent organization to conduct the affairs of the regatta, in so far as the local management thereof goes, and elected Alexander Grant of the Columbias as permanent chairman, Richard E. Pairo of the Analosians as treasurer, and Oscar P. Schmidt of the Potomacs as secretary.

At an early day the necessary committees will be appointed to carry out the details of the work and the joint committee hopes to make the coming regatta the biggest in the history of the National Association of Amateur Orsmen.

In a very large measure the success of the affair decends upon the financial aid of the citizens here, but as they are liberal, and never fall to materially aid local enterprises, the regatta may therefore be put down as an assured success.

Ceming Tour of the Marine Band. ing.

It is hardly necessary to speak of "Clover" further than to say it is the greatest of all the McCaull successes and is unquestionably the most meritorious work that has yet emanated from the proline fancy of the author of "The Beggar Student" and "Boccaccio." The advance sale of seats begins to-morrow morning.

"The Fat Men's Club" will hold a session at Harris' Bijon Theatre next week. It is presented by J. C. Stewart and a corps of able comedians and has made a hit wherever seen. It deats with incidents in the career of a numical professor, who has written an opera and wants to put it on the stage, but is opposed by his wife and daughter who contrive to thwart, his plans. He meets a twin brother who has nim join the "Fat Men's Club." The wife and daughter arrange a bogns initiation, which is carried out so forcibly that all thirst for dramatic glory is wiped out of the Professor's brain, and he retires peaceably to his hearthstone. J. C. Stewart in the part of Professor Baton is a fat man of huge girth and unlimited capacity for creating fun. In the improvised lodge room where, blindfolded, he is ushered into the mysteries of a startling begus initiation, the audience is kept in an agony of laughter by his humorous remarks on the various tricks that are performed at his expense. Seats are now on sale. Coming Tour of the Marine Band.
